

POSITION AVAILABLE:

DEPARTMENT CHAIR

Veterinary Clinical Sciences, Associate or Full Professor

The Department of Veterinary Clinical Sciences (VCS) in the Iowa State University College of Veterinary Medicine (CVM) is seeking a dynamic and accomplished individual to serve as Department Chair. VCS is one of five academic departments in the CVM comprising 50+ diverse faculty and staff members across a wide range of disciplines, all allied in teaching, research, and clinical efforts relevant to companion animals, equines, and other large animals.

The college has experienced an exciting growth period over the past decade with multiple new faculty positions posted and filled, a state-of-the-art teaching hospital (completed in 2012), revamped surgical education involving a Community Outreach Program (started in 2016), recent diversity and inclusion initiatives, and a new comprehensive pet cancer center that allows stereotactic radiation treatment (opened in 2019). The Lloyd Veterinary Medical Center teaching hospital boasts 74% increase in employees, 32% increase in caseload, and 100% increase in revenue over the past 10 years to aid in clinical training. The CVM has a cooperative program with the Blank Park Zoo in Des Moines that provides educational experiences for veterinary students, enabling them to work with all types of exotic animals. Iowa State University owns Iowa Veterinary Specialties, an emergency and specialty satellite hospital in Des Moines, which also affords greater clinical reach and caseload for referrals, faculty opportunities, clinical trials, and student education.

Iowa State University is a global and culturally diverse community committed to providing an inclusive, equitable, and diverse environment for both learning and employment.
